

New Database

Open Database ▾

Write Changes

Revert Changes

Database Structure

Browse Data

Edit Pragas

Execute SQL

Open SQL file(s)

Save SQL file ▾

▶ Execute all/selected SQL

Chapter09.sql

```
1  /* Chapter 9: manufacturing variance, first look
2     Database: CharlesRiver_Work.sqlite (a copy of CharlesRiver.sqlite)
3     Prepared by: your name, date
4     Checks: every close adds up; the 2026 postings exclude JE-2026-000296 */
5
6  -- Tutorial 9.1: every column of the chart of accounts
7  SELECT *
8  FROM Account;
9
10 -- Tutorial 9.1: the columns that identify each account
11 SELECT AccountID, AccountNumber, AccountName,
12        AccountType, AccountSubType
13 FROM Account;
14
15 -- Tutorial 9.1: the parts of each variance and their check
16 SELECT WorkOrderCloseID, CloseDate,
17        MaterialVarianceAmount AS Material,
18        ConversionVarianceAmount AS Conversion,
19        TotalVarianceAmount AS Total,
20        ROUND(MaterialVarianceAmount + ConversionVarianceAmount
21              - TotalVarianceAmount, 2) AS CheckDifference
22 FROM WorkOrderClose;
23
24 -- Tutorial 9.2: the two manufacturing accounts by number
25 SELECT AccountID, AccountNumber, AccountName
26 FROM Account
27 WHERE AccountNumber IN (1090, 5080);
28
29 -- Tutorial 9.2: the variance postings of fiscal 2026
30 SELECT GLEntryID, PostingDate, Debit, Credit,
31        SourceDocumentType, VoucherNumber, Description
32 FROM GLEntry
33 WHERE AccountID = 93 AND FiscalYear = 2026;
34
35 -- Tutorial 9.2: the source document types of those postings
36 SELECT DISTINCT SourceDocumentType
```

The header comment records the purpose, the database, the preparer, and the checks, and a comment above each query says what it answers. The script continues below the lines shown, 78 lines in all.