F11 | fx | =SUMIFS(SalesInvoiceLine[DiscountAmount],SalesInvoiceLine[PromotionID],$A11)

	A	C	D	E	F	G	H	I
3	PromotionID	PromotionName	Invoice lines	LineTotal	DiscountAmount	Share of discount dollars	DiscountPct	Lines at another rate
4	1	Alder Collection Promotion	80	323,434.84	28,124.79	3.9%	8%	0
5	2	Accessories Seasonal Promotion	431	337,900.23	37,544.57	5.2%	10%	0
6	3	Strategic Customer Promotion	149	494,666.68	67,454.54	9.3%	12%	0
7	4	Brookside Collection Promotion	74	374,091.50	32,529.70	4.5%	8%	0
8	5	Textiles Seasonal Promotion	228	468,808.77	52,089.91	7.2%	10%	0
9	6	Wholesale Customer Promotion	414	1,106,747.14	150,920.03	20.9%	12%	0
10	7	Harbor Collection Promotion	68	350,503.51	30,478.53	4.2%	8%	0
11	8	Furniture Seasonal Promotion	576	2,664,482.15	296,053.57	40.9%	10%	0
12	9	Design Trade Customer Promotion	88	205,755.54	28,057.65	3.9%	12%	0
13	Total		2,108	6,326,390.36	723,253.29	100.0%		0
14
15	Rate consistency test
16	Lines at a rate other than their DiscountPct			0
17	Lines with a discount and no PromotionID			0
18	Promotion lines left out of the summary			0
19	Result			No promotion was applied at a rate other than its approved rate
20
21	The promotion with the largest share of the discount dollars
22	PromotionID			8
23	PromotionCode			PROMO-2026-008
24	PromotionName			Furniture Seasonal Promotion
25	ScopeType			ItemGroup
26	ItemGroup			Furniture
27	CustomerSegment
28	CollectionName
29	DiscountPct			10%
30	EffectiveStartDate			2026-09-01
31	EffectiveEndDate			2026-10-31
32	Share of the discount dollars			40.9%

Parameters | Analysis | Ex 4.1 | Ex 4.2

Column B (PromotionCode) is hidden, and rows 1 and 2, which hold the title, are scrolled out of view. The data bars in DiscountAmount start at zero and the longest is on promotion 8, outlined with its share of the discount dollars. The test counts are zero, which shows that every line carries its promotion's rate, not that it was billed inside the promotion's dates.