

A labor line reaches a work center by two routes, each through its own key. The exercise merges both onto every labor line with left outer joins, names the work center each route gives, and tests whether the two names agree: SameWorkCenter is blank where either route ends blank.