

Compare hours with output on work dates, counting output only up to the last day with time records. Measure cost on the ledger, by pay date: never divide the cost of a pay year by the hours of a work year.

Time records end 20 days before the year-end. The first year has 2 fewer pay dates charged to account 1090 than the last: 24 against 26.