Ask in this order. The first yes is the question's type.

Most real questions combine two types. The controller's question about the Furniture margin is diagnostic, and it needs a descriptive summary first, so the first yes names its type and the earlier types are its first steps. A question that asks "what happened and why?" is two questions: split it and type each part.